Re: Andrew Mogilyansky

Honorable Judge McLaughlin,

I am a businessman for the best part of the last 15 years. One of my companies is developing software for automotive industry and my other company is developing vision aids for blind people with the help of Salus University and Villanova University.

I know Andrew Mogilyansky for over thirty years. We have originally met in St. Petersburg, Russia when we were kids.

Over the years, Andrew has helped me tremendously with my business and personal issues.

On top of that he has been just a very good friend.

I have personally witnessed his numerous dealings in his business and personal relationship with people around him. Andrew has always been a man of great integrity and honor.

I have personally witnessed enormous amount of time and effort that Andrew has invested into his charitable causes. He went out of his way to help children of terrorist attacks in Russia. His charity actively participated in helping kids with money, medical treatment and support.

At no time, I have witnessed Andrew do any dishonorable deed or participate in any questionable transaction.

Please consider all good deeds that he has done for people around for many years, while sentencing him.

I truly believe that his sins are the sins of weakness, not the sins of malice.
